Parties to mediation are stuck. Stuck on positions. Stuck on perspective. It is the mediator's job to move them - even when they are "move resistant." In this day-long seminar, participants have an opportunity to:

- identify the major obstacles to settlement in mediation.
- consider how a mediator's predominant approach to mediation impacts those obstacles.
- consider and experiment with shifts in style or technique that unlock impasse while adhering to a mediator's favored style and ethical boundaries.
- increase mediator effectiveness in both simple and complex cases.
